

Digital Process Innovation

What is the Digital Process Innovation?

The aim of the Digital Process Innovation offer is to incentivise and support companies to invest in the implementation of new or significantly improved digital production methods, digital service delivery or organisational methods that will increase their operational effectiveness, leading to greater productivity and competitiveness. With this offer, we are supporting investment that will accelerate your business' digital transition and introduce new ways of working.

Who can apply?

- Businesses seeking greater integration of digital technology for improved productivity. (All eligibility criteria are outlined on our website and can be accessed upon logging into your account.)

What does the offer cover??

- For SMEs and Large Companies, 50% of the eligible costs, up to a maximum grant of €150,000.

How can it be used?

- Support a step-change in the company capability and operational effectiveness.
- Implementing an innovative new way of working to increase quality, speed, dependability or flexibility of the company's operations.
- Introducing new digital technology systems or customer experiences
- Implementing new production methods for enhanced sustainability

Eligible costs:

- Salary costs for the time staff are working on the project
- Reasonable external consultancy costs
- Materials costs
- Defined overheads costs

Expected outcomes

An eligible Digital Process Innovation project will involve implementing a new way of working for the company that leads to an increase in quality, speed, dependability or flexibility of the company's operations. This includes significant changes in techniques, equipment and/or software.

The project must involve some level of innovation or risk of failure and must not be focused on routine operational changes or responding to changes in regulation.
